Home Performance 101

A one-day introduction to home performance and building science concepts. Participation in this event requires a full day commitment and excludes participation in other Tuesday conference workshops.

Conference & Exhibits both days

After a year of unprecedented growth, the PA Home Energy program invites participating contractors and newcomers alike to attend the PA Home Energy Conference 2010, featuring an advanced training agenda focused on building science, growing and sustaining your business, and up-to-date code and technical news. Position your business for expansion and prepare to deliver as state and federal programs offer incentives to consumers for making energy efficient home improvements. Attend workshops, discussion panels, and networking events, and visit the exhibit hall for the latest materials, tools, and techniques.
